

CREE ELDER TEACHINGS

Soon after a baby was born and cleaned up, it was put in a waaspisuuyaan (moss bag) to keep it comfortable and warm. Before it was wrapped up, its legs and feet were gently massaged and were parted so its feet were not touching. Rabbit fur was also used to keep the baby's feet and body warm in cold weather when it was in the waaspisuuyaan.

The mother would make an iihiipiish (baby net or dream catcher) for her new baby before it was born. Our people believed that it protected the baby from getting sick and catching a cold. They said that germs would get caught in the net. Therefore, as soon as the baby was snug in its waaspisuuyaan, the mother would attach the iihiipiish to the waaspisuuyaan. Babies always had an iihiipiish on their moss bags.

FOREWORD

We have compiled this collection of nineteen Eeyou/ Eenou values as used by the Cree Language and Cultural Program of the Cree School Board. There are other values that have been practiced by our ancestors throughout our Eeyou/Eenou history. The actions and descriptions of the following values have been suggested by our Eeyou/Eenou community members who attended three Eeyou Istchee conferences.

We recognize that colonization, residential schools and pieces of these structures have continued to impact us as people. It is important to note that some of our original teachings had to be hidden to protect our traditional ways. Historically, there has been a clash between our traditional values and practices with the western viewpoints that have been enforced upon us. Much of our inherent practices and traditions were based on love, connection and inclusion of people, animals, land and water – all of creation and the respect and care of each. Recognizing the impacts of colonization, residential schools and the challenges our people have faced is important to understanding where we are today. There is much strength, resiliency and beauty within our culture, land, and families.

This book can be modified to be used as an inclusive teaching tool for everyone so that they may read, write, and make a step towards expressing their own thoughts. This is an important opportunity to recognize and share our Eeyou/Eenou values where we learn, play, work, and live.

EEYOU/EENOU FAMILY VALUES

Our family values originate from our Eeyou/Eenou philosophy/liyiyiuiyihtuwin (Eeyou/Eenou way of life), traditional values and customs that come from the land, birds, fish and animals we harvested for food.

Our ancestors, grandmothers and grandfathers alike had a special relationship with all animals, land, water, and air.

Much like the animals they harvested, our ancestors roamed the pristine lands of Eeyou/Eenou Istchee with respect and gratitude for what the Creator had to offer.

Eeyou/Eenou family values and customs are the strength of our nation because they teach us to respect one another and share our food when times are tough.

Eeyou/Eenou family values guide you and steer you in the right direction in living the good way.

JOHN BLUEBOY AND THE TAMARACK DECOY

In the mid-1960s, John would lay on his hospital bed pondering what kind of livelihood he could have for his family. He was an avid hunter and trapper until he fell ill with tuberculosis. He must have imagined about all his hunting, fishing and trapping expeditions and our ancestral survival tactics. During his convalescence, John asked his wife to gather small willow branches and started to make a miniature goose decoy. He sold his first decoy to a nurse for $2.00. He asked for tamarack branches shortly after because the branches were more flexible and had a distinct fragrance. John was a humble, generous and Christian man, because of his ingenuity and survival instincts, the tamarack decoy quickly became a genuine Cree souvenir from Moose Factory. He fashioned different size ones and later decoys in flight were made. Today, special thanks to John, many Cree artisans both young and old, artistically make these tamarack decoys to show the Cree respect and our special reliance on the Canada goose for food.
